fed. I miss those stooping, wan-faced women and girls of former times who had no stamina. Once they were in the majority. Delicate hands and feet were, of accourse, to be found, but it was accompanied with drooping head, no breadth of chest and general debility. I do not know if it arises so much on account of more exercise, but rather from the fact that food, such as women use, is better cooked and more plentifully given to them than in the stame of the stame of the stame of the different cargoes were as follows: than in the time of our mothers and grandmothers. There used to be an old-fashioned school which was founded on stinting. It was unladylike for a girl to eat a hearty meal. Our sisters used to be half starved. Cravings for that solid food which was absolutely necessary for growing girls were satisfied with cups of tea or thin slices of bread and butter on which a little preserve had been spread. Now, you may think but little of my ex perience, but a sea-side resort is exactly per-You appearance of our women. You may that I am an interested party, because I feed my guests as well as I can, and that a better class of people frequent my house, but the observations I have the honor of entertaining you with are general, and apply to the great majority of wo-men I meet in the streets of New York. believe that it is the preparation of it which has made the change. There country in the world where the nec which has made the change. There is no country in the world where the necessity of good, well cooked food is greater than in the United States. The changes in our climate are terrible, and the wear and tear on the human frame is immense. Perhaps nowhere else, in any great city of the world, is the stress on human brains so great as in New York. It is miraculous to think how, 50 years ago, men or women got along at all, and preserved their faculties, with the bad system of feeding they had then. But if I believe I can appreciate better physical condition in the city, I cannot say the same for the country. The country is still pie-fed and frying-pan fed, it revels in clammy paste, sticky dough, overdone meat, 'gnores a rare broiled beefsteak, is utterly ignorant of soup, and destroys its digestion by elogging stomachs with bacon fat. It is worse in New England than in the Middle States. It is not poverty that does it, but the want of judgment in the selection of food and ignorance in preparing it. These engender long lantern jaws, pallid complexions, and slabsideness in men and women. Feed a man and a woman through a half century on indigestible food, and their offspring will show the effects of it. It is century on indigestible food, and their offspring will show the effects of it. It is not the physique which is only undermined, but the mental qualities are dwarfed. We don't want over-nervous men and women, all tingling brain and no massive brawn. Such traits give birth to all kinds of queerisms. You find me any well-fed people, who would follow those wild re-ligious tenets, which analog is sent people, who would follow those wild religious tenets, which ended in such a fearful tragedy as took place in New England this year. That horrible thing came as I straight down as could be from a century I of bad food and abnormal digestions. People don't look at food in the right way. Most especially do professional people, those who work the hardest, often adopt an asceticism which is fatal to them. The thing we all want is staying power. It is true, we Americans accomthem. The thing we all want is staying power. It is true, we Americans accomplish a great deal in a marvelously short period of time, but the fact is we use ourselves up doing it. We don't stay. Your lawyer, your docter, your professor, more especially the two first, too often go to the most unfortunate of all extremes. That stimulant which good, well cooked food, and plenty of it, would afford them they do not think about. The great waste that is always pulling them to pieces they make up for too often by drink. This works for a time with fearful rapidity keeping the machine agoing in triple fast time, but then it soon grinds out the cogwheels. Your Professor plods, it is true, and may not require, apparently, the

IRONTON, O., Sept., 18, 1879. To the Editor of the Cinemanti Commercial

I find that your correspondent, who gave the first account of the great iron boom, has fallen far short of the true state of affairs. Talk about Colorado and Leadville! Here is a bonanza shead of them all. And the iron makers and iron dealers are beginning to appreciate the true condition and to see their advantage. It is common talk that prices will soon run up to the old figures before the panic. It was then about $60 a ton at the furnaces. And why should it not? There is no iron here of any consequence. The furnaces are engaged for all they can do for four months ahead The idle furnaces can not get to work so as to affect the market before spring, so that the holders of the old stock of pig iron can command their own prices for many months to come.

THE WASTE OF LIFE.

Why We Should Take Better Care of Ourselves.

A hotel-keeper, past the middle age of life, of long experience, and who had quite acute powers of observation in regard to the physique of his guests, was quite positive that there had been developed of late a better form in womankind. "I know of no reason to account for this improvement," said he, "than by advancing the idea that women and girls are better fed. I miss those stooping, wan-faced women and girls of former times who had
